Hi there! So, my name is April Berry. Just to break it down real quick; I have TONS of experience. If you can name it, chances are, I've done it! I started shooting in January of 2009 and haven't stopped since! I'm, also, quite experienced with runway. I have tons of wardrobe and I usually do my own hair and makeup. I have many photos and experience examples hosted here on FaceBook. I am not currently booking any tf* or portfolio building shoots. Please check out my "notes" section for my hourly, half day, and full day rates. I will travel just about anywhere. Guess what! I offer pose coaching, too! I have super low hourly rates for pose coaching! Photographers, if you are working with a new model and would like to boost your images by adding my extensive arsenal of poses to the mix, or if any of you models would like a little extra help, just contact me! I would love to work with you and do all I can to help! One thing I feel is important that I mention is that I am legally blind. This fact, all will agree, has no effect on my personality or ability to model. It does, however, mean that I will need to be accompanied by another person to shoots. It ensures that I'm able to travel and, also, just makes things run more smoothly. Some of my runway experiences...2009 Peoria, Illinois WGIP "What's in Your Closet" Fashion Show Fundraiser. I live in Tennessee. I'm half Lebanese, a quarter German and Native American and Hungarian. I'm from Detroit, MI. My father was born in Africa, and speaks five different languages. My mother was a chalk artist. My grandmother taught me how to draw, paint, sew, and make jewelry. She is my inspiration. I studied Advanced Theater Arts in High school. I went to Engineering college for three years. I began to feel like I should be somewhere else, where I could express myself better. During the third year of college, I left after getting booked on the new Jumanji aired in 2017. Ever since, I have spoken on TV shows and commercials. I've gotten to play CSI roles, using my own Canon camera. I have advocated for safe clean drinking water for pets with Petsafe. It is unreal to think that I own shoes that were made for me, when I modeled for Columbia Sportswear's new fishing line. And now, I'm completing my first fashion line to be shown in the Knoxville Fashion Week in August.

Achievements: My goal is to end all wars, to speak at the United Nations, and to help people move forward. I am dating someone that I had a dream about being together before that actually happened. Everyday I am challenged by the fact that my childhood friend left this world too early. I try to work hard to show my loved ones that are still here that everyday is worth it. Working together is how we will beat the system.
